Approved For Release 2007/08/21 : CIA-RDP84T00301R000100010035-8

Director of Top Secret

National Intelligence Daily (Cable)

12 January 1982

Top Secret

CO NIDC 82-009C

12 Jenuary 1982

Approved For Release 2007/08/21	: CIA-RDP84T00301R000100010035-8
---------------------------------	----------------------------------

Top	Secret

25X1

Contents

	Poland: West Condemned for Interference	_
	Syria-USSR: Khaddam's Impending Visit	1
	Brazil: Political Liberalization in Jeopardy	2
	USSR-Ghana: Soviet Reactions	3
	Mexico-Canada: Trudeau's Visit	3
	Romania: Payments Problems	4
Spec	ial Analysis
	Iran: A More Confident Regime	5

Top Secret

25X1 25X1

Approved For Release 2007/08/	_
		Top Secret
LAND: West Condemned	For Interferen	ice
TASS yesterday critici	zed the US and NA	TO for interfering in land's internal affairs.	Official Polish s	tatistics indicate at the government has more	indiv iduals unde	r aetention than it d at the beginning of the TASS reported yest	erday that Poli	sh Foreign Minister
vrek and Soviet Forei	an Minister Gro	myko discussed number of questions pical international p	or Soviet-Poils roblems." The	brief description
the talks emphasized	the discussion	n of disarmament
id highlighted Preside	nt Brezhnev's p	proposals on INF
ade during his visit t	o Bonn in Nover	mper.
The ministers cond	emned "attempts	s by the US as well s by some other NATO c	ountries to int	terfere in the nternal affairs of Pol	and." TASS als	so charged yesterday
nat NATO's statement o utes "impermissible pr	n the situation essure" on a so	overign state and ontradicts the UN Char	ter and the He	lsinki accords.
Comment: The emphost publicized theme of	asis on disarmo f Warsaw Pact :	foreign ministers' alksprobably was int	ended to impar	t a "business as sual" flavor to the Cz	vrek-Gromyko ta	alks and to high-ight a subject that the	e Soviets beli	eve to be of greater oncern to the West Eur n Poland.	Opean public c	narcrar raw
A government spoke	sman on the we	ekend claimed that ince the imposition of ave been detained, of	whom 918 have	been released. In ddition, 1,433 have be	en arreste d, o	f whom 276 have een sentenced and 17 a	cquitted.
Commont. The read	me distinguish	es between the two atogories by claiming	that the detai	nees have not been harged with a crime.	They have been	taken off the streets prevent them from le	eadin g or becom	ing involved in sistance to martial	.aw.
		continued
		Top Secret
	i i

	Top Secret
The statistics indicate that the r individuals under detention now than it Government officials have been noticeab when these people will be released, but the regime fears many would quickly bec political activity on Solidarity's beha	did 12 days ago. ly reticent about it is clear that ome involved in
This perception suggests that many will not be released for several months This issue, thus, will continue to gene between the Church, the Vatican, and We on the one hand, and the Polish regime	at the least. rate tensions stern governments

25X1

25X1

Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger Soviet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that Khaddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  Strained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisions of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the parties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral relations appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.	Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming- rest of a threat to the peace or security of one of the first series.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming- restaily in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is unlikely to obtain re than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians robably rules out any advance commitments to a specific rurse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-		301R000100010035-8
Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger Soviet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that Khaddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  The strained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisions of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the parties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger viet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the lan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that laddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of lee month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty is Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  Trelations have been relations of the treaty calling for consultations in the rent of a threat to the peace or security of one of the arties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific surse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.		Top Secret
Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger Soviet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that Khaddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  The strained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisions of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the parties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger viet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the lan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that laddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of lee month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty is Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  Trelations have been relations of the treaty calling for consultations in the rent of a threat to the peace or security of one of the arties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific surse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.
Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger Soviet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that Khaddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  The strained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisions of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the parties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger viet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the lan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that laddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of lee month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty is Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  Trelations have been relations of the treaty calling for consultations in the rent of a threat to the peace or security of one of the arties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific surse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.
Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger Soviet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that Khaddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  The strained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisions of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the parties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger viet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the lan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that laddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of lee month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty is Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  Trelations have been relations of the treaty calling for consultations in the rent of a threat to the peace or security of one of the arties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific surse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.
Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger Soviet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that Khaddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  The strained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisions of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the parties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger viet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the lan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that laddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of lee month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty is Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  Trelations have been relations of the treaty calling for consultations in the rent of a threat to the peace or security of one of the arties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific surse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.
Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger Soviet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that Khaddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  The strained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisions of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the parties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will attempt to elicit stronger viet support for Syria in confronting Israel's annexation of the lan Heights when he visits Moscow soon.  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that laddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of lee month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty is Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  Trelations have been relations of the treaty calling for consultations in the rent of a threat to the peace or security of one of the arties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific surse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.	SYRIA-USSR: Khaddam's Impending Vi	sit
The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that Khaddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  Strained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisions of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the carties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—expectally in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Top Secret  The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that land would travel to the USSR "around the middle of lee month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  Friendship and Secret s
The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that Khaddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  relations have been strained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisions of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the parties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that laddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of le month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  Irrained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provious of the treaty calling for consultations in the lent of a threat to the peace or security of one of the littles.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain re than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific curse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.  Top Secret	Syrian Foreign Minister Khaddam will	attempt to elicit stronger
The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that Khaddam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  relations have been relations of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the parties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	The USSR and Syria announced over the weekend that addam would travel to the USSR "around the middle of the month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.  relations have been relations of the treaty calling for consultations in the rent of a threat to the peace or security of one of the arties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific curse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.  Top Secret		rael's annexation of the
Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians of the Syrians of the Syrians of the middle East-course of a ction. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming- pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East-but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain re than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific urse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re- tions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.	To take the type at the type of type of the type of type of type of type of the type of ty
Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East-but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	month" for consultations under the bilateral Treaty Friendship and Cooperation signed in 1980.    relations have been rained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisors of the treaty calling for consultations in the rent of a threat to the peace or security of one of the rities.    Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific urse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.    Top Secret   Top Secret
comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East-but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East-but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain re than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific urse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.	(naddam would travel to the USSR "a:	round the middle of
relations have been strained by Soviet footdragging in invoking those provisions of the treaty calling for consultations in the event of a threat to the peace or security of one of the parties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East-but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	relations have been invoking those provious of the treaty calling for consultations in the tent of a threat to the peace or security of one of the arties.  Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming—pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle East—but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the rethan rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific turse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.  Top Secret
Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is unlikely to obtain me than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific curse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.	rela	tions have been
Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East-but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain me than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific warse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.	strained by Soviet footdragging in	invoking those provi-
Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is unlikely to obtain me than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific surse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.
Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	Comment: Moscow will want to appear forthcoming-pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle East-but Khaddam is unlikely to obtain me than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians obably rules out any advance commitments to a specific curse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.		ecurity of one of the especially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit to the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is unlikely to obtain more than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians probably rules out any advance commitments to a specific course of action. As a result, strains in bilateral re-	pecially in light of Secretary of State Haig's visit the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is unlikely to obtain the than rhetorical support. Mistrust of the Syrians robably rules out any advance commitments to a specific turse of action. As a result, strains in bilateral retions appear certain to increase in the coming weeks.  Top Secret	,41 01001 especially in light of Secretary of to the Middle Eastbut Khaddam is a more than rhetorical support. Mistroprobably rules out any advance commis course of action. As a result, stra	State Haig's visit unlikely to obtain rust of the Syrians itments to a specific ains in bilateral re-

Top Secret	25
BRAZIL: Political Liberalization in Jeopardy
Government efforts to ensure victory in the national elections in November have aroused growing opposition and are threatening the liberalization process.	<sub>,</sub> 25
President Figueiredo's sweeping electoral "reform" package became law yesterday without a formal vote by Congress. Emergency rules had to be invoked, however, under which executive proposals become law automatically.	° 25
The President had expected government majorities in both houses to produce a favorable outcome, but the opposition was united against the proposals and even some members of his party objected. It became clear the government could not risk bringing the measure to a vote.	25
Comment: Figueiredo has lost significant prestige.  His manipulation of the electoral process may not be enough to offset the strong showing the opposition is likely to make, and more changes in electoral procedures are almost certain.	25
Any move to postpone the electionswhich the opposition now fearsprobably would not come until after these additional measures were attempted. A postponement would lead to a reimposition of authoritarian controls, a step that Figueiredo and most military officers are reluctant to take.	25

	Top Secret
		2
USSR-GHANA: Soviet Reactions
The Soviet media is becoming increased about the military coup in Ghana, portivictory for democracy and economic reviblamed Ghana's economic and social propro-Western governments, which it alleged the CIA. Earlier in the week, TASS leftists were supporting the coup.	raying it as ival. Pravda blems on pre ged were ins	a vious talled
Comment: The commentary reflects belief that coup leader Rawlings will and Moscow's effort to improve relation regime. The Soviets probably also are Accra's decision over the weekend to reties with Libya. Nevertheless, Moscow about dealing with Rawlings, who expeltituo years ago following his first coup	consolidate ns with the encouraged esume diplom will be war led several	power new by atic Y
MEXICO-CANADA: Trudeau's Visit
//Talks between President Lopez Pominister Trudeau in Mexico City this we political developments in Central Americal trade, which has nearly quadrupled over $1 billion. The Canadians also as supplying reactors for Mexico's ambitic opment program. Although Mexico is confrom the US and several other countries are optimistic that they are in a favor because their reactors do not require of the countries are optimistic that they are in a favor because their reactors do not require of the countries are optimistic.	eek will focica and on bid since 1979 re intereste ous nuclear asidering rest, the Canadrable positi	us on ilat- to d in devel- actors ians on
Comment: //Lopez Portillo and Troon their similar political views to espersonal relationship, highlighted by manship of the Cancun summit last Octol leader is stepping down next December, Trudeau will take advantage of his vist Lopez Portillo's designated successor, Madrid.//	tablish a wa their joint per. The Me however, an it to meet w	rm chair- xican d ith
	Top Secret	_

3

Top Secret	25X
ROMANIA: Payments Problems
//The Romanians are meeting today and tomorrow with representatives of at least 10 major Western banks to discuss payments problems. Bucharest's arrearages to banks and Western exporters total more than $1 billion.	۷
	25X
Comment: //The banks consider Romania a poor risk. They probably will reject the bid for new money as a last-ditch attempt to avoid a formal rescheduling.//	25X

Approved For Release 2007/08/21 : CIA-RDP84T00301R000100010035-8

	Top Secret
	Tob Secret
PECIAL ANALYSIS
RAN: A More Confident Regime
The regime of Ayatollah Khomeini has at hwarted the domestic opponents who challenged that has gained the initiative in its war with lence these successes have inspired is reflect aggressiveness toward its Arab neighbors. It ehran to improve its relations with Moscow.	d it last summer, and Iraq. The new confi- ted in recent Iranian
Repression has been effective. S gime has executed at least 2,000 suspe ailed thousands more. Assassinations are far less frequent and street battl cences last summerhave all but stopp	cted opponents and of regime officials esdaily occur-
//The Islamic socialist Mujahedin position group, appears in disarray. Rajavi, is still in Paris
//One faction of the Mujahedin mathe pro-Moscow Communist Tudeh Party. Deen forced to stay in hiding before, Teappear.//	The group has
//Other opponents of the regime railitary is preoccupied with the war, other ethnic minorities either are quithe defensive.//	and the Kurds and
Despite increased factionalism in cal party, Khomeini probably will contserious rifts. The government now fee to push such potentially divisive politorm, which the more conservative cler	inue to prevent els secure enough cies as land re-
//If the political situation remandance prospects will improve somewhat. Recently have begun to price their oil which probably will lead to expanded e	The Iranians more competitively,
	continued

Approved For Release 2007/08/21: CIA-RDP84T00301R000100010035-8

5

Approved For Release 2007/08/21: C	XA-RDP84T00301R000100010035-8
------------------------------------	-------------------------------

	Top Secret
currency earnings. The economy, however ignificantly over the next year, and remain well below prerevolutionary lev	production will //For now, Tehran is swapping oil products and arms. Much of this trade bean countries.//
//Because of foreign exchange corcribution bottlenecks, food and fuel supply for winter heating see last year, and the government's distribution consumer supplies probably will expectations of the poorer peoplethe base.//	shortages recur.  ems better than  ibution of food and  satisfy the limited
Relations between Iran and the US out Western reluctance to supply arms ong-term economic agreements with Irache pressure on Tehran to expand trade countries and their clients. Iranians greatest threat to them comes from the USSR is a "lesser Satan."	or to enter into an will increase with Communist believe that the
Iranian leaders, moreover, appear they can control relations with Moscow bious assumption, particularly if Iran on the Communist states for trade and	v. This is a du- n becomes reliant
Moscow has long sought improved to give strong support to the Khomeini for example, continues to supply arms.	regime. The USSR,
	continued

25X1

25X1

25X1

25X1

25X1

25X1

25X1

25X1 25X1

6

Top Secret
Tehran's growing confidence that it will win the war is making it more assertive in its dealings with Baghdad's Arab allies. Iran has warned Arab leaders in the Persian Gulf region that aid to Iraq is futile and shortsighted.
//Iran remains uninterested in negotiating a settlement of the war, believing that its military advances eventually will cause the collapse of the regime in Baghdad. Iraq's apparent readiness to make major concessions has strengthened Tehran's conviction that Iraq is weakening.//
Further Iranian victories will be unsettling to Arab leaders in the Persian Gulf region. Iraq will become less effective as a counterbalance to Iran, leaving the other states more vulnerable to pressures and subversion from Tehran.

25X1

25X1

25X1